

Curling

For teams with the right swing

Teams with the right swing: the tradition of the team sport of curling dates back to the 13th century. Even then, the team concept was at the forefront, because then as now, victory can only be achieved together. Combined with energy, flair and the right swing, victory is within reach. The warm-up phase begins and the ice sticks whizz across the smooth surface. In their sights: the points. The teams play for victory according to the motto "everyone against everyone". Special game variations round off the competition. One indoor variant is carpet curling.
