

Leadership Workshop with Andrea Grudda

Identify trends in the economy and implement them together

Andrea Grudda deals with the future viability of companies and is a strategist, author and speaker with enthusiasm. In her lectures she combines science, lifestyle and strength of implementation and fascinates her participants with a firework of practical examples from the "modern world". For over ten years, she has established herself in a wide range of industries. She accompanies companies in their transformation into the new world. She has a great talent and instinct for recognising "what is coming" and understands exactly how people, societies and customers develop and behave. Whether general societal changes, contemporary sales or new communication - her work at various academies and universities and close cooperation with strong companies makes this practical and sound knowledge possible.
